

Dear FCC, Satellite radio such as XM should have the right to broadcast weather and traffic reports to their paying customers as long as they are obtaining that programing legally. The National Association of Broadcasters has no right to decide what I listen to as long as I pay for that service. I have been a subscriber of XM almost two years and have never gone back to listen to AM, FM or any other free service. Competition will make the industry stronger and better. I ask the FCC to reject NAB petition HR 4026. I suggest to NAB to find a better cause to support like the filth on Television FREE services. By the way, I do not watch any free television services either - I pay for the entertainment that I watch. What's the difference? I guess if it was left up to NAB, we still would be watching ABC, NBC and CBS. Gosh - what a boring world that would be! Thanks. Glenn D Turner
